Appellate Mechanism

Any athlete concerned who disagrees with the decision of the Selection Committee may appeal to the Hong Kong Team Selection Appeal Committee within 3 days after the results are announced, and the applicant must submit it in writing together with the appeal fee (HK$500).) ; It also proves that the Hong Kong Select Committee and the Athlete Selection Committee did not implement or deviate from the promulgated selection criteria or procedures during the selection process, or that the information obtained during the selection process was deficient and that such information was sufficient to affect the outcome. Otherwise, the Hong Kong Team Selection Appeal Committee may reject the application for an appeal. Once the Panel accepts the application for appeal, it must reconsider it in accordance with the reference indicators and factors set by the Select Committee of the Hong Kong Team and the Athlete Selection Committee. Both the Hong Kong Team Selection Appeal Board and the applicant may appoint legal representatives to participate in the entire process involving the appeal, but all costs incurred in appointing legal representatives shall be borne by the commissioning party. The Selection Committee for the Hong Kong Team may, after study and judgment, add or delete the number of delegates or candidates, and may also send them back to the Selection Committee for further consideration.

If the appellant is not satisfied with the above result, he may submit a well-founded written request for final review within 3 days after receiving the above result. Upon receipt of the appeal letter, a Review Board will be set up and a written reply will be given to the appellant within one week. The final review is also final.

If the appeal is straight, the appeal fee (HK$500) will be refunded.
